

Painting the wild flowers of Romania

SUSAN HILLIER, FSBA

Susan is originally from Surrey, but now lives and works in Cornwall-she has been a professional artist since leaving Art School in 1970.

For several years Susan worked as a freelance illustrator for the Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew, where this prestigious work included dissecting herbarium specimens to produce black and white scientific illustrations. She has painted prize winning orchids for the Royal Horticultural Society, and has RHS medals, including gold for her paintings.

She has been commissioned by British Rail, Tesco, McMullen's Brewery, The Law Society, The Police College, and many private and commercial clients, for a variety of figurative work, much of it plant based, and some very large scale.

Susan is an accomplished facsimile painter and has worked by recommendation of the National Portrait Gallery.

She is a keen gardener and is a founder member of the Society of Botanical Artists. Susan has illustrated several books and has worked in commercial illustration, her work is included in 'The Botanical Palette'. She recently contributed many illustrations for three gardening books by Alan Titchmarsh.

Susan works in various media and is currently using acrylics and watercolours. She also teaches botanical illustration for the SBA on their diploma course, and gives classes in the West Country, as well as exhibiting in commercial galleries and working to commission.

She frequently shows in mixed exhibitions in Cornwall and London and has work in private collections worldwide. She has had several solo exhibitions, including by invitation at the Royal Cornwall Museum in Truro. Susan is a member of the Cornwall Watercolour Society.
